WATER BOOK

Let's
Grow
Together

Dear Water,

Unfortunately, this isn't a happy letter, an exciting letter, or even an angry letter! It saddens us to say that this is in fact a goodbye letter. We're writing to you because we're aware that very very soon you won't be around anymore, and we don't when we'll see you again or if you'll ever come back at all. We know that there's no point in thinking about the past, the damage is done, but we'd like to say sorry.

We're sorry we consumed a lot of you even though we knew that in some places it didn't rain. We're sorry for not keeping the oceans and rivers clean, even though they should've always been. We're sorry for using you even when it was unnecessary. We're sorry for letting the industries abuse you. We're sorry for showering for too long. We're sorry for leaving the tap open while we were brushing our teeth and shaving. We're sorry for not saving you and we're sorry we didn't educate people more.

You were the source of our lives, and we took you for granted till the very last drop. You are not endless, and like everything else, you eventually disappear, because of our greediness and our selfishness. We should've taken better care of you, overall, we're sorry it's too late.

Dear Water,

This is an apology letter for you, I'm sorry. People don't care about you anymore but they don't think about themselves either.

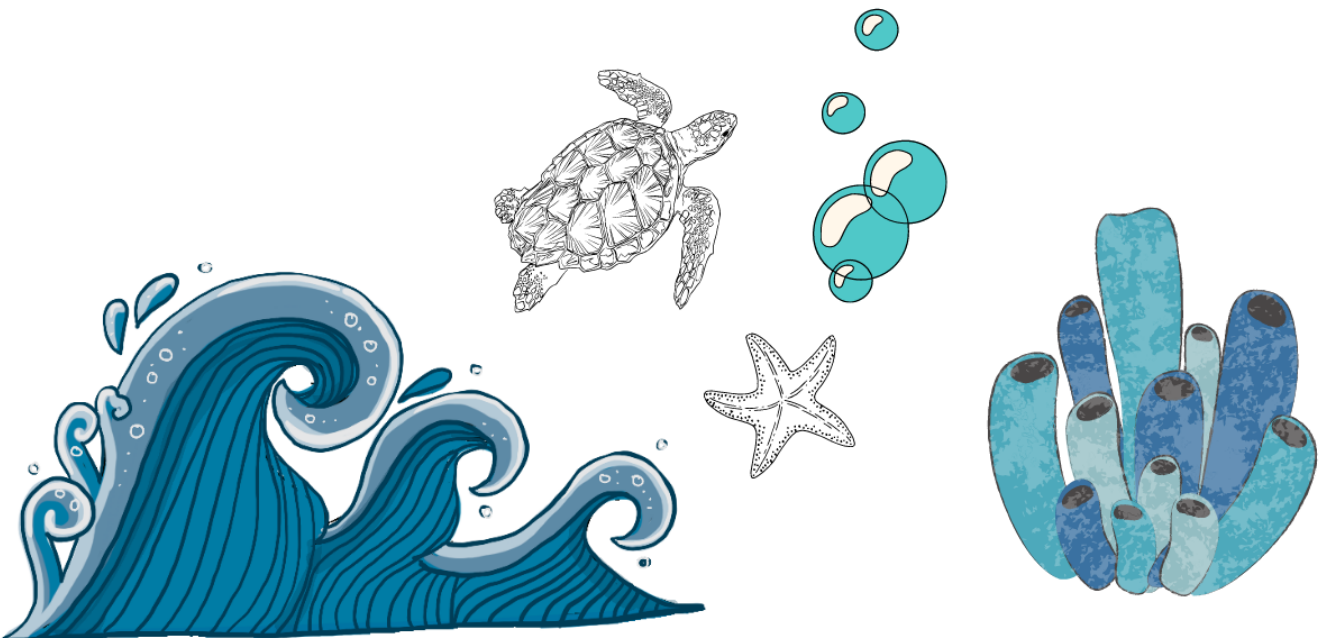

People are tired just like you we did bad things and we didn't do anything to improve.

We pollute the oceans, waste too much water, use it for selfish purposes and we didn't think about the future. But now we regret it and we are trying to find solutions.

1. What can we do to make it up to you?

Answer: We could clean the beaches, stop wasting too much water, collect rain water forming we can purify, salt water because we have very few sources of fresh water and we must use it efficiently.

We know you're angry and upset, and we just want you to know that we are sorry, too. We don't know if it's too late for everything, but we promise you, we'll try very hard. We want you to know that we appreciate you so so much and we love you. We hope you will forgive us. <3

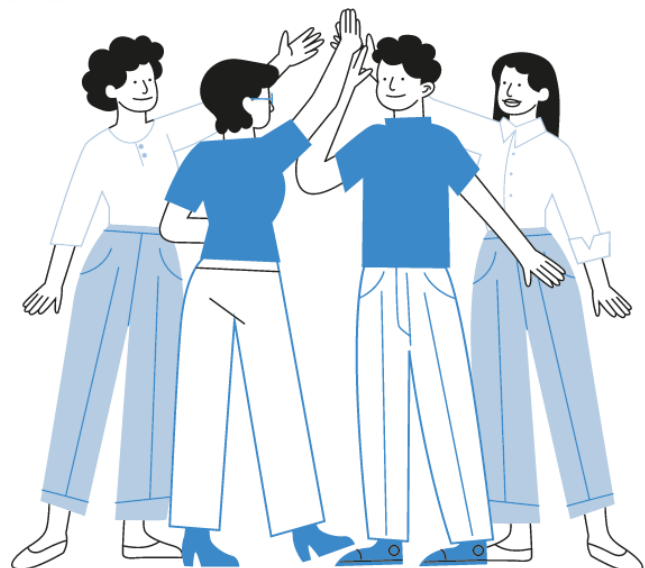

Dear Water,

First of all, you provide us all with many rich resources. We're sorry for the destruction we've made on you by polluting our reasons you are an indispensable part of our life. We need you to carry out our daily activities as breathing, functioning and most important keep living. But, we're not capable of seeing or believing to be aware that you're limited. We extend our deep apology you for overusing you without being conscious about how to use you less and more efficiently. Although we're completely know that you always be necessary as long as life on earth continues, we're betraying you by being selfish not thinking about the consequences we're temporary in this life, but our next generations will feel the damage made by us now.

In order to solve this water crisis, we should, develop technologies which will enable us to turn salt water into drinkable and usable one. As a second step to take, we can reuse the water instead of consuming more. We should regret as adverse influence on your resources, we should also publish advertisements, set up cooperation groups like we do here in Erasmus, by gathering many diverse people around the world. Here only on one table, we have an opportunity to discuss some effective problems we face in our countries and trying to come up with new ideas to tackle our water shortage.

We hope you will get better, recover quickly from the problem that we caused to you. We will do our best to solve the problem together in cooperation with all the nationalities. Because when alone, it shoulders for us to make progress towards making our Earth a prosperous one.

To finish our letter, to much water doesn't bother.

Dear Water,

First of all, we wanna thank you for what you have given us. You give us home and keep us safe. You show us that you are powerful and stronger than anything through storms, all the beautiful views and all other amazing things that you do to keep the balance in the world.

It must have been difficult for you to live with us because we are causing problems and ruining the balance that you fight to keep, and for that we're sorry. In the last letter that you wrote to us, you said that you were tired and that you didn't know how much longer you could keep with it, especially you warned us about the lack of water and how close we are to the limit. We see that through our bad habits, such as polluting water and our irresponsibility in terms of using water.

Only less than 1% of the water on earth is drinkable and accessible to human kind, and knowing that, we still take advantage of you, using water unconsciously. We don't know if there will be a comeback from here, but we promise to try our best to help you and to make you get better. Thank you for your patience and I hope you can forgive us. Earth, you were, you are and you will always be important.

Water is not only water,
water is our future...
